

February 09, 2026: Forget 'American' Values - What are Common Moral Values?

Since America never did live up to the ideals that it purported to represent and since it now has shown its complete disregard for idealistic morals in any way whatsoever,

Let us all redefine our morality so that we can enlighten ourselves and others as to where it is that we seek to travel in our united future.

MUSK says: We are moving off of earth to the Moon or Mars. (K, BYE! Don't let the door hit you where the good Lord split you!)

TRUMP says: 'QUICK TRIAL!' (What's go for me is good for thee.)(I charge thee with treason.) (And, I am not the only person that agrees with this assessment. Today, Jack White is quoted as saying: "Arrest this man. Impeach this man. 25th Amendment this man. Indict this man. Jail this man. . . . This demolisher of the White House, demolisher of the Constitution, demolisher of the Bill of Rights, this demolisher of America, full stop.")(The crimes are adding up and I am specifically alleging that psychological warfare is being waged on his behalf against my home daily for the time period of several years now.) (Acoustic weapons are now being used as weapons of war.) (These are serious crimes - and not just misdemeanors.)

For those of us still living in reality, here is some guidance:

AI Overview

The quote "It is better that ten guilty persons escape than that one innocent suffer" is known as Blackstone's Ratio. It was famously written by English jurist Sir William Blackstone in his Commentaries on the Laws of England in the 1760s. This principle highlights the importance of protecting innocent individuals in the justice system.

Key Aspects of Blackstone's Ratio:

- Origin: While commonly attributed to Blackstone, the sentiment dates back to ancient legal traditions, including Roman law and biblical texts.
- Significance: It serves as a cornerstone of the Anglo-American legal system, emphasizing that the burden of proof lies on the state and that wrongful imprisonment of an innocent person is a greater injustice than allowing a guilty person to go free.
- Variations: Similar sentiments have been expressed by others, such as Benjamin Franklin, who famously wrote, "It is better 100 guilty Persons should escape, than that one innocent Person should suffer".
- Purpose: The phrase is not necessarily a literal, mathematical formula but a guiding philosophy for justice and leniency in cases of uncertainty.

About 40% of ICE arrests over the past year involved people without criminal records

Figures represent the percentage of 392,619 total arrests made from Jan. 21, 2025 to Jan. 31, 2026.

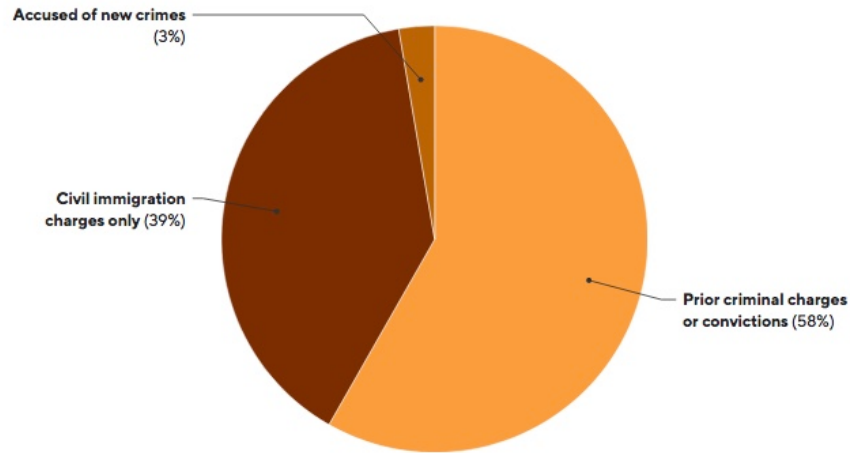

Chart: Julia Ingram, Camilo Montoya-Galvez / CBS News • Source: DHS Internal Report

Only 2% of ICE arrests involved people with alleged gang affiliations

Figures represent the percentage of 392,619 total arrests made from Jan. 21, 2025 to Jan. 31, 2026.

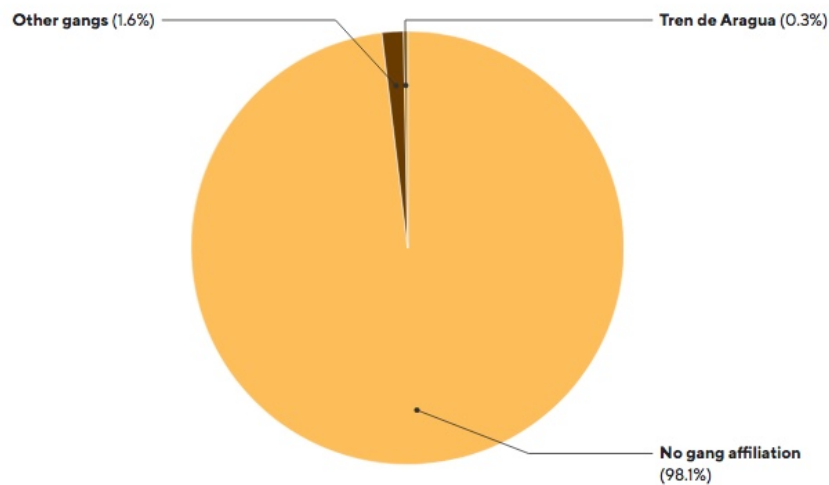

Chart: Julia Ingram, Camilo Montoya-Galvez / CBS News • Source: DHS Internal Report